4-6 Inch Snowfall Continues

State Blanketed; Roads Are Bad

Nebraska's mid-January snowfall continued into Tuesday after putting a four-to-six inch cover on the ground, making roads hazardous throughout the state, and leading the way for colder temperatures Tuesday.

The state was blanketed by the gentle, powdery snowfall that was part of a general storm extending from northwest South Dakota down to Oklahoma and eastward into Iowa and Missouri.

Weather Bureau forecasters called for the snow to end Tuesday, and the prediction was for colder temperatures hitting in the 20s for a high mark.

Early Halt Predicted

Locally, the Airport Weather Station's report said the snow was to quit by 6 a.m. Tuesday. Early Tuesday the station was reporting light snow with half-mile visibility.

Every reporting station throughout Nebraska reported light snow during the day. In most cases the fall was light and gentle and continuing.

Grand Island said winds were causing five-inch drifts there and Imperial reported four inches on the ground. Other stations, mentioning low visibility and continuing snow were: Omaha, North Platte, Sidney, Chadron and Scottsbluff.

Roads Hazardous

State Safety Patrol headquarters said that all roads in the state were hazardous with packed snow although none were known to be blocked to traffic.

There were reports of property damage and slight-injury accidents, but no serious automobile mishaps had resulted.

Reporting snow ranging up to 6 inches in the Chadron and Gordon area, the Weather Bureau said the fall there had slackened and was light by early evening.

Continuing

Broken Bow, Mullen, Holdrege, Geneva, Kearney and Hastings all reported 2 inches on the ground with a steady but fairly light snow continuing.

In Lincoln the snow had been falling almost continuously since early Monday morning but was fine.

Airlines in Lincoln reported "no irregular operations as yet" but said that a further decrease in visibility might hamper operations.

Bus lines and railroads serving the city said their schedules had not been materially affected by the snow.

Anderson Budget Message Thursday

Gov. Victor E. Anderson at his first staff meeting stressed to state employees that he expects them to cooperate with the Legislature. He advised them to "clear" proposed legislation through his office rather than "lobby" with individual members.

When asked for information by senators, the governor said he expected state employees to give "unbiased answers."

The officials were instructed to make as frugal use of federal funds for state use as would be the case with state funds.

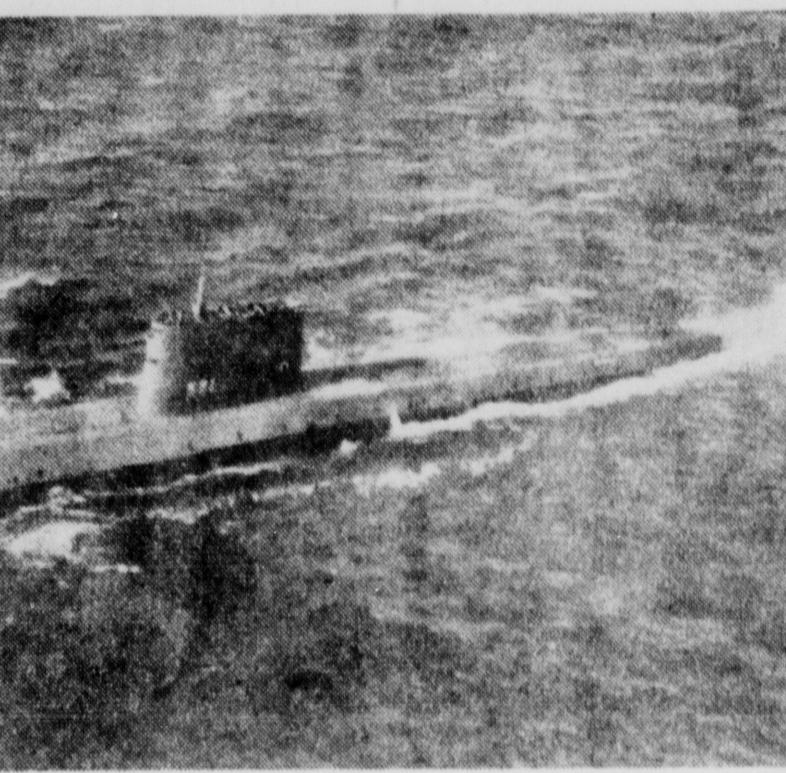

Suggestions were made that the bill be amended to exclude "two-legged Beavers even if they are pests" as the committee members and other senators had fun with their fellow member.

The Monday meetings of the staff will be a weekly feature, the governor said.

City Licensing Takes In $34,572 In 1954

The city's licensing department collected a total of $34,572 during 1954.

This figure compares to $32,624.30 for the previous year. This year's total includes $22,239 for dog licenses.

—Reaction To Ike's Budget—

Democrats Eye Defense Plans

Budget Still Out Of Balance For Fifth Consecutive Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower sent Congress Monday a slightly lower $62,408,000,000 budget that will put two of every three dollars into defense and the largest peacetime amounts into atomic-armed air power and continental defense.

Still unbalanced for the fifth straight year, the budget blueprint costs of operating the government for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Eisenhower told the legislators in a 27,000-word message the administration's objective is to be "provident," to put "first things first," to guarantee the nation's security in these days of uneasy peace, and at the same time "assure high and rising employment, a growing prosperity, and a stable dollar." The budget, he said, contains some increased funds to promote the "general well-being of the people."

Eyebrows Raised

Some Democrats raised their eyebrows at the defense program and suggested it may not be big enough. Some did a bit of jeering because the budget still is in the red. Key Republicans commented, as did the President, that at least headway is being made toward a balanced budget.

Here and there were hints, but nothing more, that maybe Congress could balance it even if Eisenhower couldn't.

The President estimated that in the year ahead, government spending will come down about a billion dollars, income will rise about a billion, and the deficit will add up to $2,400,000,000. That is a little more than half the size of this year's deficit.

1954 Road Traffic Made 2% Increase

Traffic on Nebraska highways in 1954 was 2 per cent greater than in 1953, L. N. Ress, state engineer, said Monday. Greatest increase was on U.S. 75 south of Union at 9 per cent.

The count on U. S. 6 north of Gretna showed an increase of 6 per cent over 1953 and 22 per cent over December of that year. It now carries the heaviest traffic at any of the 15 points where counts are taken. In December there was an average of 4,792 vehicles daily.

Traffic at 17th and B streets in Lincoln showed an increase of 4 per cent for the year. There are an average of 10,198 vehicles counted there every day and the December average was 10,506.

Man Travels First Time Using Atoms

'Routine' Operation Slides Sub Into Open Water For Her Sea Trial

By CARL L. LALUMIA

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—Man moved for the first time under atomic power Monday, less than 10 years after its terrifying force burst upon Hiroshima.

Under nuclear propulsion, the 3,000-ton submarine Nautilus slid smoothly from a dock for her first sea trials and man's first trail-blazing use of the controlled atom for transportation.

A matter-of-fact four-word message from the bridge of the black, lo-lying Nautilus ended the news of the history-making event.

It read:

"Underway on nuclear power."

There was no fanfare; almost no excitement.

To Navy men and newsmen aboard the submarine rescue vessel Skylark, lying close to the Nautilus as she backed into the Thames River, it appeared like a roto operation.

Only an hour after the Nautilus pulled out, President Eisenhower disclosed in his budget message to Congress that three more atomic submarines are planned, bringing the size of the nuclear-powered fleet to seven.

INTO SUN

The Sea Wolf, under construction here, probably will be launched before the year's end. Two other atomic submarines had been provided for previously, although their keels have yet to be laid.

The Nautilus, sailing by the Sea Wolf, pointed her bow into the sun and made smoothly for the trial area in Long Island Sound. Only a half-hour earlier she had left the fitting-out dock of her builder, the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp.

It was only then that her skipper, Cmdr. Eugene P. Wilkinson, of San Diego, Calif., flashed the message.

Just as routinely as it was sent, the message was received on the Skylark's navigation bridge by two quartermasters: second class, Gilbert Kerr of Dundalk, Md., and John Manning of Bridgeport, Conn. both 22.

Kerr acknowledged the message with a "Roger."

'The Same'

If he or Manning felt any excitement neither showed it.

"I've been doing it for three years," said Kerr, "it's the same as any other day."

"I guess that's so," chimed in Manning with a grin.

The revolutionary Nautilus, 300 feet long, and capable of circumnavigating the globe without refueling because of her atomic power plant, looked bigger than the conventional submarine.

There was none of the smoke that comes from the exhaust of Diesel-engine-powered submarines.

The Nautilus picked up speed quickly once it headed toward the sound at 12 knots.

Otherwise, Navy men aboard the Skylark said, there was little to hint at its vastly superior fighting and cruising powers.

Anyone watching her from shore could have mistaken her for any one of the many submarines that ply the Thame from the base floor office at U.N. Headquarters.

Third Conference

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (INS)

—U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold conferred Monday for the third time on release of 11 American fliers jailed in Red China as "spies."

No details were released on the meeting, which lasted about 45 minutes in Hammarskjold's 38th floor office at U.N. Headquarters.

Club May Be Poised

TOKYO (Tuesday) (UPI)—Peiping radio today intimated that the release of 11 U.S. airmen jailed as spies was tied closely to the question of admitting Red China to the United Nations.

Peiping did not say so directly, but it broadcast at some length comments in Indian newspapers on the recent talks between Premier Chou En-lai and Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. secretary general, in the Red capital.

Ike Offers Unbalanced Budget

Treasury Plans To Spend Billion Less In New Fiscal Year
... 62-Billion Expenditures Proposed

The New Federal Budget By The Associated Press

Budget estimates for fiscal year ending June 30:
1955 1956
Spending ..... $ 63,504,000,000 $ 62,408,000,000
Income ..... 59,000,000,000 60,000,000,000
Deficit ..... 4,504,000,000 2,408,000,000
Public Debt ..... 274,300,000,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower handed Congress Monday a slightly whittled $62,408,000,000 budget to put "first things first" and boost spending for atomic air peacetime peaks.

The budget, Eisenhower said, also provides for increases here and there to promote the "general well-being" of the people, for holding the line on living costs, and for shoring up and expanding the economy.

Tilted out of balance for the fifth straight year, the budget covers costs of running the government for the 1956 fiscal year starting next July 1.

It contemplates that the Treasury will spend about a billion less, take in a billion more and run up a deficit of about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  billion dollars — a little more than half the size of this year's. While the President said progress is being made toward blotting up the red ink, he continued to insist there can be no more tax cuts now.

Massive Message

Eisenhower told the legislators in a massive, 27,000-word message that his budget is founded on three broad considerations of national policy:

To defend against "attack from without and undermining from within," and "advance human welfare and encourage economic growth," and to "maintain financial strength."

Back of it, too, is a reliance on a continuing, increasing prosperity for business and the American people and an expectation of rising employment and production. But it also is based on a fear that the peace will be insecure for "a long period of uncertainty."

Once again, therefore, the "stern requirements of our national defense" will use up two thirds of the expenditures —  $4\frac{1}{2}$  billion dollars. That is 180 million dollars less than this year's figure and six billions below the amount for last year.

The total spending of $62,408,000,000 projected for next year compares with an estimated $63,504,000,000 for this year, an increase of $1,896,000,000.

60 Billion Income

Eisenhower figures government receipts will go up an even billion, from 59 billions this year to 60 billions next year.

This means the deficit will come down $2,096,000,000 from $4,504,000,000 to $2,408,000,000.

At the same time, the public debt will go up $1,700,000,000 to 276 billion dollars on June 30, 1956.

Eisenhower said he has no alternative but to ask for an increase in the debt limit. Congress voted

871-Million Funds Cut For Ag Department Proposed

WASHINGTON (INS) — President Eisenhower proposed Monday to spend roughly two billion, 300 million dollars on the Agriculture Department's far-flung program during the coming 1956 fiscal year.

This represents an 871-million-dollar cut in previous spending estimates for the year beginning July 1 and is possible because the administration contemplates smaller outlays for farm price supports. The new expenditures figure is 298 million dollars less than the amount the department actually spent in the fiscal year 1954.

Plans laid down in the President's annual budget message to congress call for larger expenditures than in the current (1955) fiscal year for agricultural research and education and for the foreign agricultural service.

More Attacks

An agriculture department spokesman told newsmen that a one million dollar increase in FAS spending contemplates the addition of more agricultural attaches at undisclosed strategic points around the globe.

Estimates of Agriculture Department spending in the new fiscal year are substantially increased over the current year, exclusive of operations of the multi-million-dollar Commodity Credit Corp., the agency which supports farm prices.

The budget figures anticipated that CCC loans and other operations will be down sharply from two billion, 159 million dollars in the current year to one billion, 15 millions in fiscal 1956.

More For Conservation

Official estimates are that 212 million dollars will be used for agricultural conservation payments to farmers next year as compared with 190 millions in the current year.

Congress authorized a 250 million dollar ACP program for the current year and Mr. Eisenhower asked for an addition 175 million authorization for the crop year ahead.

He also asked for a 15 million dollar increase in landing authority for the Rural Electrification Administration, including five millions for telephone loans.

Estimates at that REA outlets will be about 232½ million dollars in 1956 as against 217 millions in the current year.

Joe Says Demo 'Tortured Truth' In Claim—No Reds Uncovered

None Named By McCarthy
Found To Be Red—Johnston

WASHINGTON (INS)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) accused Sen. Olin Johnston (D-SC) Monday of "torturing the truth" in reporting the State Department had not uncovered a single Communist as a result of McCarthy's original charges of Reds in the government.

McCarthy told newsmen that Johnston "garbled and mis-stated the facts" contained in a State Department letter to the South Carolina Democrat and announced he would seek a complete report on the entire situation.

Johnston, Senate Post Office Committee chairman, declared that he had been informed "not one" State Department employee named by McCarthy in 1954 had been found to be a "Communist or disloyal to our government."

The southern lawmaker, who plans to open a probe next month of government security firings, asserted that the report by the present Republican administration should clear up this matter for all time."

Dropped?

Despite Johnston's assertions, McCarthy said the letter written by Assistant Secretary of State Thruston B. Morton showed that 61 of 80 employees originally accused by the Wisconsin Republican "had been dropped or resigned while under investigation."

The Morton letter also said seven persons named were not working for the department when McCarthy made his charges in 1950. McCarthy said this group might include Far Eastern expert Owen Lattimore and the late William Remington who, he said, were "advisers" to the department.

Morton wrote that one additional employee had died and McCarthy said he assumed from the letter that the remaining 11 were still working for the department.

To clarify this, McCarthy said he would write for more information on all persons named by the senator as having had Communist associations while they worked for the department.

In his first charges, McCarthy named 80 State Department employees but later added another 35 to the list. A Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee, headed by former senator Millard Tydings (D-Md.), investigated the situation four years ago and reported the charges untrue. McCarthy fired back by saying the probe was a "white-wash."

After Johnston gave his report on the situation, McCarthy said he asked the State Department for a copy of Morton's letter. After examining the document, he handed it to newsmen and said:

"Johnston certainly distorted, and twisted the facts and misstated them. It is stretching and torturing the truth a great deal."

$200,000 For Governor's Home Sought

Speaker Dwight Burney, Hartington, said Monday that he is having a bill prepared a appropriate $200,000 for a new executive mansion.

Gov. Robert Crosby, before he left office, announced the acquisition of the remaining land in the block fronting the Capitol grounds where the mansion now stands. This now provides a half-block as a setting for the mansion.

The purchase was made with money earmarked by the 1953 Legislature for the purpose from funds appropriated 10 years ago for a mansion.

Sen. Monroe Bixler said the bill setting up the permanent appointive Board of Educational Lands and Funds will be ready for introduction this week. The old board was abolished by a constitutional amendment.

He will propose a five-member board with one from each congressional district and one at large. Any person leasing school land would be ineligible.

An emergency bill is already before the Legislature setting up a temporary board to act until a permanent one is established.

Sen. Earl Lee announced that he will offer a bill providing for the calling of a constitutional convention.

Fewer Deaths Thus Far

At the close of the past week end—more than half through January—the Nebraska highway death toll stood at 13. This was a little less than one a day.

Over the same period a year ago the Nebraska fatalities were 20.

It must be considered tragic and a matter for continuing concern when the traffic score contains any names.

But it is encouraging to note a decline from the 1954 death rate. And it is pertinent to note that January thus far has been a month of highway hazards. The weather has not been conducive to safety. It has brought storms and on most of its days somewhere in the state the highways have been unsafe.

No one will know until the year is over whether short range reports reflect a real change in driving caution. Highway fatalities have a way of bunching up and playing hob with interpreted trends.

But this much at least is known thus far. With more hazardous driving conditions Nebraska had fewer fatal accidents. And that is good news.

There is some evidence of the fact and it is to be hoped, a continuing trend, that safety campaigns are bearing fruit. Safety education continues to bring its fire down on imprudent driving and law enforcement is not slackening. The great third element is the public will for collective and individual safety. When it begins to move massively it will be the beginning of the end of these long annual death lists.

In Nebraska it appears the public will for safety is beginning to move at an accelerating pace. Let us, at least, hope that such is the true interpretation of these early and more comforting returns.

Uncle Sam In The Red

There was nothing by way of surprise or shock in the budget submitted to Congress by President Eisenhower. Spending requirements, including those for national security which claim 65 cents of every dollar paid in by the American taxpayer, will again entail a deficit estimated by the President as less than that experienced in the current fiscal year, but still a deficit and still an unbalanced budget.

Mr. Eisenhower is experiencing the same difficulties in achieving a balanced budget that confronted his predecessor. He is discovering that it is one thing to talk about reducing taxes and balancing the budget, and something else entirely different to accomplish these objectives.

The demands continue. The requirements for purposes other than that of national security are not too burdensome. They, in fact, have taken a beating particularly in recent years because of the promises made to balance the budget and to reduce taxes, promises which filled the air in 1952.

This administration no longer can nor should fall back on the excuse that commitments made by previous administrations make it impossible to carry out its pledges. This administration now is on its own. We can anticipate, however, that the failure to achieve a balanced budget in the last year of the Eisenhower administration, and the impossibility of providing another tax cut may collide seriously with Mr. Eisenhower's international program. The pressure to terminate foreign aid is certain to mount. In Congress the cry arises that we have spent $40 billion to enable our friends in other sections of the world to regain their feet and to ride out the storm, and the time now has come to stop. That could prove the dominant note in discussion of any year ahead.

In one other respect the President has placed himself in a difficult position to which Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia directed attention at week's end. The Virginian is opposed to the President's massive super-highway program. It contemplates the borrowing of billions by Uncle Sam to finance this network of super-highways, billions which shall not be computed as part of the national debt. That is a strange line of reasoning which the Clay Commission has adopted. Sen. Byrd's position makes sense. If that type of financing is to be adopted in connection with highway construction, then limitations by way of a ceiling on the national debt lose all significance.

We doubt that the public will become excited over the prospects of another year of an unbalanced budget and deficit spending. If recent years mean anything, the public will take it in stride.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer

The other day the world took note of the 20th birthday of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, a man who commanded no arms, never held high office, has no wealth and is seldom seen in the populous and sophisticated places where the important gather.

Dr. Schweitzer, an Alsation by birth, is a medical missionary with a long and fruitful career of service in equatorial Africa. He was not honored for great contributions to medical science but because he was one of those unusual men whose heart is ruled by a superlative compassion for humanity—especially that segment of humanity that has nothing but need to trade for charity. Most of his life he has treated and healed a needy people and wherever he could, he has relieved them of suffering.

We do not know whether his beneficiaries ever rendered him full payment either in things or in proportionate gratitude—probably not. But Dr. Schweitzer has been paid in full by the inward satisfaction of a noble passion. That is one of the two-fold reasons why his fellow men are paying tribute. There is an inner desire in all people to be their brother's keeper, seldom realized so fully as in the case of Dr. Schweitzer. And there is also the yearning in all people to live lives which in the living grants one a full and complete satisfaction in their work.

The New Ford Grant

America owes a vote of approval to the Ford Foundation. Recently it earmarked $6,500,000 to encourage broader training of qualified young people in the knowledge and skills of international relationships.

The money will go in generous grants to Harvard, Columbia, Stanford and Michigan universities, four schools that have taken the lead in teaching statecraft.

One can think of no better or more timely disposal of funds, for the United States is in the critical position of a great nation suddenly thrust into a great leading world role, having the responsibility without adequate preparation.

Statecraft and diplomacy were not important subjects in American education of the past. That work was carried on by nations which occupied themselves with international affairs while America confined its attention to domestic affairs. Now confronted with the responsibility that comes with leadership the nation is in a position of a minor but talented actor suddenly handed the lead role and ordered onto the stage without learning the script.

It is not a criticism of American education, but more an observation, based upon a generally laggard attitude toward reality, that only four major schools saw the future clearly enough to begin preparing students for the inevitable tasks of dealing in world leadership.

New Pennsylvania Governor Farmer

(Editor's Note: The brass ring—good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-go-Round, goes to George Leader, the chicken farmer, who today is inaugurated governor of Pennsylvania.)

WASHINGTON — It isn't often that Pennsylvania elects a Democratic governor—in fact, it happened only three times since the Civil War. It also isn't often that any state elects a 36-year-old chicken farmer to handle its problems.

That, however, is what the rock-ribbed Republican state of Pennsylvania did when it elected George Leader by a healthy margin of 280,000 votes. Compared with Averell Harriman's narrow squeak in New York, which has frequently gone Democratic, this was a landslide.

So the other say I went up to the Leader farm near York, Pa., to see what the new governor of Pennsylvania was like.

There I met a man who really loves farming. There have been a lot of amateur, mink- and -mature farmers in public life—from Tom Dewey and his dairy farm at Pawling, N. Y., to Eisenhower and his two black Angus heifers near Gettysburg. But there are not too many high-up politicians who are really on farming as their sole source of income.

"The only money I ever made outside the farm," confessed Governor Leader, "was my salary as state senator, and that wasn't very much. So if the price of eggs drops, I'm out of luck. All a farmer can do when that happens is hold on and hope that prices will come back again."

Despite that, the governor-elect, who takes the oath of office today, doesn't think Secretary Benson should support the price of eggs.

"In Pennsylvania," he says, "the poultry farmers have always been against that. We think we can manage somehow, even though the price of the grain we feed is supported by Mr. Benson."

SMALL VS. BIG FARMS

What he does blame Benson for is favoring the big farmer and not doing enough to encourage small farmers. Leader himself operates a farm of 110 acres, purchased through a GI loan. He can make it pay only by intense specialization with baby chicks.

The average family farmer who doesn't specialize can't make a living on 100 acres any more," the governor contends, "so more and more of them are drifting to the city. It's one of the most serious problems the nation faces."

The Leader farmhouse is nothing you would expect the governor of the second most powerful industrial state to be living in. It's small, neat, compact. There's a living room in which the governor-elect receives the callers that crowd up to his farm home in such numbers that he gets little room.

There's a much bigger kitchen which serves as dining room too. And there's a narrow hallway that's been converted into an informal office where the governor-elect's secretary tries to keep up with the flood of letters giving the new governor free advice on how to run the state of Pennsylvania.

The Leader family has been farming in York County for seven generations, and George Leader Sr., is one of the bigger poultry breeders of the East. His son is more modest, though he sells 1,000,000 baby chicks a year.

RENTING BENS

I thought dairy farming was a reasonably skilled business, but it seems poultry is much more so. Governor Leader rents his hens. He doesn't buy them. He rents them from an Iowa chicken breeding plant which specializes in inbreeding chickens to develop the best laying hens.

This process of inbreeding chickens is what Henry Wallace, former vice president and secretary of agriculture, has been doing since he retired from politics. It was

To Know The Woods Without A Gun

Hunting gets into a man's blood. Few women can comprehend the lure it holds, and few men who have felt it can resist it. Perhaps it is an atavism, casting back to the days of survival and primitive hunger. Or perhaps it is something else.

I do not know. I know only that no man knows the full, round pleasure of hunting until he has left his gun at home.

We have been hunting, my son and I, and all that we brought back was what our memories could hold. That, and the wooden duck decoys we took with us when we went. They were decoys that we had made carefully and painted lovingly during the summer evenings, and the reason we gave one another for going out with them was that we wanted to see how they looked on the lake, with the wind blowing on them and the little choppy waves hitting at them.

The lake is a small one on a farm owned by a friend of ours. We have built duck blinds on its shore and covered them with brush and cattails. The decoys rode nicely on the water a few yards offshore, looking from a short distance for all the world like the ducks they represented. There were 20 of them, a sizable flock, made in the likeness of hens and drakes, of mallards and teal and pintail.

"Let's wait in the blind," said Lee, "and see if the wild ducks will come in to them."

The wind rustled the dry leaves on the blind and we crouched, silent, watching little streamers break off from a cloud overhead. There was a sound in the field behind us, and through the lacings of the blind we saw the source. A cock pheasant strutted out of the cover of bushes along the fence line, and soon another joined him, and then three. Their color was brilliant against the dun grass.

We were so intent on the pheasants that we did not see the ducks coming in. The sound their wings made was our first signal. A cock pheasant strutted out of the cover of bushes along the fence line, and soon another joined him, and then three. Their color was brilliant against the dun grass.

As The Granary Spills Over

Editor's note: The following is an editorial from The Des Moines Register.

The United States Government has nearly 7 billion dollars invested in farm products stored under price support programs. A year ago, the figure was around 4.5 billion dollars.

These are shocking figures. They raise serious questions about the soundness of present farm income stabilization programs. Government holdings are equivalent to more than one fifth of the total cash income of American agriculture this year. This does not mean that one fifth of farmers' income is from the Government. It should be recognized that the government stockpile of non-farm strategic reserves also is very large. The government has been spending about a billion dollars a year for the last four years to put strategic mineral reserves in the defense stockpile. Part of the CCC investment in farm reserves should be credited to strategic stockpiling.

However, it is obvious that some of the reserves are much larger than needed for this purpose. CCC holds enough wheat to satisfy domestic needs for a year and three months and enough cotton to last a period of a year.

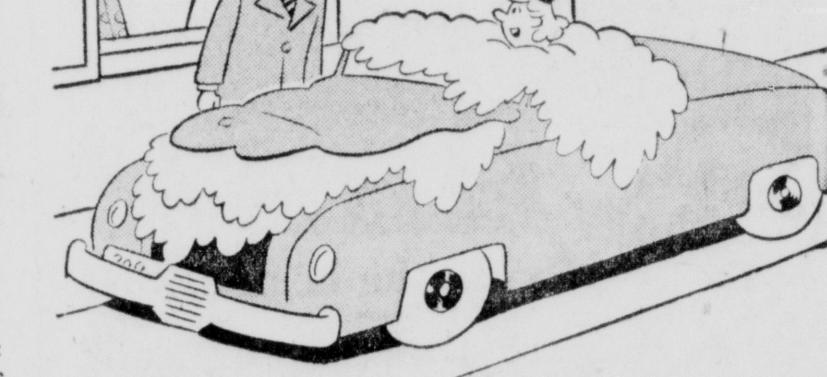

Reserves of perishable food commodities cannot be defended on the basis of strategic stockpile necessities. The government now holds nearly a half billion dollars' worth of butter and cheese, for example, which ought to be moving into consumption.

It is indefensible for the United States government to accumulate surpluses so long as people are in need. And many people are, even in these prosperous times. Farm subsidies should be paid for increasing consumption—not for cutting production, or for building excessive reserve stocks.

The size of this farm commodity surplus dramatizes the need for radical changes in farm policy.

Just removing price supports and letting farm income "go hang" is a solution few people would advocate. Farmers have taken severe

State School Board Names Decker Commissioner; Opposes Land Sale

By ARCH DONOVAN
Star Staff Writer

After organizing and electing F. B. Decker as commissioner of education, the newly created State Board of Education Monday discussed proposed education bills in the Legislature and in an informal vote expressed opposition to LB 26, which calls for sale of the 1,630,000 acres of state owned school land.

The proposal to sell the lands given the state by the federal government as a trust for school operation is being made by Sens. Monroe Bixler of Harrison and D.

J. Cole of Merriman. Similar proposals have been defeated in past sessions.

At its first formal meeting with all six members present, the board named Morris Jacobs of Omaha, chairman; and Dr. Raymond Gilmore, Kearney, vice-chairman. Both will serve for two year terms.

The board then named Decker, former state superintendent, as commissioner of education and fixed the salary at $9,000 a year. Both Decker and Jacobs were given temporary appointments at the organization meeting a week ago.

The new position for Decker which will run one year brings a

$2,500 a year increase in salary. He was formerly paid $6,500.

"Decker hasn't been paid what he should have been paid for a long time," Chairman Jacobs said. The higher salary takes into account increased responsibilities Decker is assuming, he added.

The board approved the following staff appointments:

G. F. Liebendorfer, deputy commissioner and assistant commissioner for vocational education.

Stanley L. Hawley, administrative assistant to the commissioner.

Dr. Leo L. Black, assistant com-misioner for instruction.

Liebendorfer has been director of vocational education under a board that was abolished and the work consolidated under the new state board.

Attending their first board meeting were Hamilton F. Mitten, Fremont, recently appointed by Gov. Victor Anderson, to fill the vacancy caused by Walter Steffen of Norfolk failing to qualify and Dr. Gilmore who was suffering minor injuries from an auto accident.

He was authorized to appear before committees at his discretion to testify on bills affecting the field. However, they indicated that field. However, they indicated that board members will endeavor to attend hearings on major bills.

Frank Landis of Lincoln and W.

Ray Hill, Seward, were named a legislative committee.

In addition to informally expressing opposition to LB 26, the board registered approval of LB 98 which provides that third grade and elementary school certificates shall not be issued after 1960.

The board will meet again on

Feb. 8 in regular session.

POSTCARD

A number of years ago, a prospector staggered out of the Superstition Mountains into Phoenix. He had a showbox full of gold and immediately became very popular.

I have forgotten his name and am too lazy to look it up. But this is the way most stories of the lost Dutchman Mine begin.

Since then, a raft of people have looked for the mine. So many miners staggered out of the hills, it became profitable to put up soft drink stands on the route. Gradually this grew into a paying business and the resort area of Camelback was born.

Hardly anybody looks for gold in the hills anymore. Too much here on the desert.

For heaven's sake, why not?

I said. The animal had missed my leg by a small margin.

"He gets too much attention. Dudes allus bringin' him sugar and stuff like that."

"I never brought the bum any sugar. Is he mad at me?"

"He don't mind you. If he was to kick you it would be accidental. Ha, ha."

On succeeding days I found horses more and more unpredictable. They have to be lathered with a chunk of sagebrush to get them into high walk. But when they are headed for home, there is no holding them.

"I reckon they want to eat. Just like us," said the wrangler.

Personally I don't care to have my spine bumped by a hungry horse. And for all I know they might get hungry enough to take a chunk out of me. They have horribly large teeth.

I simply mention it because horses come with the equipment out thisaway. A visitor not on a horse is nobody. Like a tourist without a sun tan at Waikiki.

In Nebraska it appears the public will for safety is beginning to move at an accelerating pace. Let us, at least, hope that such is the true interpretation of these early and more comforting returns.

Uncle Sam In The Red

There was nothing by way of surprise or shock in the budget submitted to Congress by President Eisenhower. Spending requirements, including those for national security which claim 65 cents of every dollar paid in by the American taxpayer, will again entail a deficit estimated by the President as less than that experienced in the current fiscal year, but still a deficit and still an unbalanced budget.

Mr. Eisenhower is experiencing the same difficulties in achieving a balanced budget that confronted his predecessor. He is discovering that it is one thing to talk about reducing taxes and balancing the budget, and something else entirely different to accomplish these objectives.

The demands continue. The requirements for purposes other than that of national security are not too burdensome. They, in fact, have taken a beating particularly in recent years because of the promises made to balance the budget and to reduce taxes, promises which filled the air in 1952.

This administration no longer can nor should fall back on the excuse that commitments made by previous administrations make it impossible to carry out its pledges. This administration now is on its own. We can anticipate, however, that the failure to achieve a balanced budget in the last year of the Eisenhower administration, and the impossibility of providing another tax cut may collide seriously with Mr. Eisenhower's international program.

The pressure to terminate foreign aid is certain to mount. In Congress the cry arises that we have spent $40 billion to enable our friends in other sections of the world to regain their feet and to ride out the storm, and the time now has come to stop. That could prove the dominant note in discussion of any foreign aid program.

One other respect the President has placed himself in a difficult position to which Sen.

Harry Byrd of Virginia directed attention at week's end. The Virginian is opposed to the President's massive super-highway program.

It contemplates the borrowing of billions by Uncle Sam to finance this network of super-highways, billions which shall not be computed as a part of the national debt. That is a strange line of reasoning which the Clay Commission has adopted. Sen. Byrd's position makes sense. If that type of financing is to be adopted in connection with highway construction, then limitations by way of a ceiling on the national debt lose all significance.

We doubt that the public will become excited over the prospects of another year of an unbalanced budget and deficit spending. If recent years mean anything, the public will take it in stride.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer

The other day the world took note of the 90th birthday of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, a man who commanded no armies, never held high office, has no wealth and is seldom seen in the populous and sophisticated places where the important gather.

Dr. Schweitzer, an Alsation by birth, is a medical missionary with a long and fruitful career of service in equatorial Africa. He was not honored for great contributions to medical science but because he was one of those unusual men whose heart is ruled by a superlative compassion for humanity—especially that segment of humanity that has nothing but need to trade for charity. Most of his life he has treated and healed a needy people and wherever he could, he has relieved them of suffering.

We do not know whether his beneficiaries ever rendered him full payment either in things or in proportionate gratitude—probably not. But Dr. Schweitzer has been paid in full by the inward satisfaction of a noble passion. That is one of the two-fold reasons why his fellow men are paying tribute. There is an inner desire in all people to be their brother's keeper, seldom realized so fully as in the case of Dr. Schweitzer. And there is also the yearning in all people to live lives which in the living grants one a full and complete satisfaction in their work.

The New Ford Grant

America owes a vote of approval to the Ford Foundation. Recently it earmarked $6,500,000 to encourage broader training of qualified young people in the knowledge and skills of international relationships.

The money will go in generous grants to Harvard, Columbia, Stanford and Michigan universities, four schools that have taken the lead in teaching statecraft.

One can think of no better nor more timely disposal of funds, for the United States is in the critical position of a great nation suddenly thrust into a great leading world role, having the responsibility without adequate preparation.

Statecraft and diplomacy were not important subjects in American education of the past. That work was carried on by nations which occupied themselves with international affairs while America confined its attention to domestic affairs. Now confronted with the responsibility that comes with leadership the nation is in a position of a minor but talented actor suddenly handed the lead role and ordered onto the stage without learning the script.

It is not a criticism of American education, but more an observation, based upon a generally laggard attitude toward reality, that only four major schools saw the future clearly enough to begin preparing students for the inevitable tasks of dealing in world leadership.

New Pennsylvania Governor Farmer

Editor's Note: The brass ring—for one free ride on the Washington Merry-go-Round, goes to George Leader, the chicken farmer, who today is inaugurated governor of Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON — It isn't often that Pennsylvania elects a Democratic governor—in fact, it happened only three times since the Civil War. It also isn't often that any state elects a 36-year-old chicken farmer to handle its problems.

That, however, is what the rock-ribbed Republican state of Pennsylvania did when it elected George Leader by a healthy margin of 230,000 votes. Compared with Averell Harriman's narrow squeak in New York, which has frequently gone Democratic, this was a landslide.

So the other say I went up to the Leader farm near York, Pa., to see what the new governor of Pennsylvania was like.

There I met a man who really loves farming. There have been a lot of amateur, mink-and-mature farmers in public life—from Tom Dewey and his dairy farm at Pawling, N. Y., to Eisenhower and his two black Angus heifers near Gettysburg. But there are not too many high-up politicians who rely on farming as their sole source of income.

"The only money I ever made outside the farm," confessed Governor Leader, "was my salary as state senator, and that wasn't very much. So if the price of eggs drops, I'm out of luck. All a farmer can do when that happens is hold on and hope that prices will come back again."

Despite that, the governor-elect, who takes the oath of office today, doesn't think Secretary Benson should support the price of eggs.

"In Pennsylvania," he says, "the poultry farmers have always been against that. We think we can manage somehow, even though the price of the grain we feed is supported by Mr. Benson."

SMALL VS. BIG FARMS

What he does blame Benson for is favoring the big farmer and not doing enough to encourage small farmers. Leader himself operates a farm of 110 acres, purchased through a GI loan. He can make it

Demos Unforgiving Of Nixon's Attack

WASHINGTON — The enduring hostility of Democrats toward Vice President Nixon is now a widely advertised fact of American politics.

The bold and ambitious vice president gambled that he alone could turn the Democratic tide last fall. He lost.

Because he lost, Democrats have been able to put across their anger and resentment over the Nixon methods. Had he won, putting control of House and Senate back in Republican hands, his happy party would have raised no questions about those methods. Anything said by the defeated Democrats would have been dismissed as sour grapes.

The new Nixon story begins back in mid-September, when it first became possible to sense how the campaign was going. In state after state, the Democrats, who had on the whole better candidates, seemed to be pulling ahead.

Such GOP grass roots experts as House Leader Halleck and Rep. Simpson, chairman of the Republican House campaign committee, took to the road and discovered the problem was two-fold. Eisenhower Republicans and independents were putting little money and zeal into electing a strictly Republican Congress; old-line Republicans were unhappy over what they felt was Eisenhower's New Dealish tilt.

One can think of no better nor more timely disposal of funds, for the United States is in the critical position of a great nation suddenly thrust into a great leading world role, having the responsibility without adequate preparation.

Statecraft and diplomacy were not important subjects in American education of the past. That work was carried on by nations which occupied themselves with international affairs while America confined its attention to domestic affairs. Now confronted with the responsibility that comes with leadership the nation is in a position of a minor but talented actor suddenly handed the lead role and ordered onto the stage without learning the script.

To Know The Woods Without A Gun

Hunting gets into a man's blood.

The average family farmer who doesn't specialize can't make a living on 100 acres any more," the governor contends, "so more and more of them are drifting to the city. It's one of the most serious problems the nation faces."

The Leader farmhouse is nothing you would expect the governor of the second most powerful industrial state to be living in. It's a small, neat, compact. There's a living room in which the governor-elect receives the callers that crowd up to his farm home in such numbers that he gets little rest.

There's a much bigger kitchen which serves as dining room too. And there's a narrow hallway that's been converted into an informal office where the governor-elect's secretary tries to keep up with the flood of letters giving the new governor free advice on how to run the state of Pennsylvania.

The Leader family has been farming in York County for seven generations, and George Leader Sr., is one of the bigger poultry breeders of the East. His son is more modest, though he sells 1,000,000 baby chicks a year.

RENTING HENS

I thought dairy farming was a reasonably skilled business, but it seems poultry is much more so. Governor Leader rents his hens. He doesn't buy them. He rents them from an Iowa chicken breeding plant which specializes in inbreeding chickens to develop the best laying hens.

This process of inbreeding chickens is what Henry Wallace, former vice president of agriculture, has been doing since he retired from politics. It was Henry who developed hybrid corn, as a result of which the corn crop of the USA has just about doubled. And he's now trying to do the same thing with chickens—namely, picking the best breeds of chickens, breeding them back to their own families to develop a variety of hen that will not only lay a lot of eggs but will be disease-resistant. For most good laying hens become weak and susceptible to chicken diseases.

As The Granary Spills Over

Editor's note: The following is an editorial from The Des Moines Register.

The United States Government has nearly 7 billion dollars invested in farm products stored under price support programs. A year ago, the figure was around 4.5 billion dollars.

These are shocking figures. They raise serious questions about the soundness of present farm income stabilization programs. Government holdings are equivalent to more than one fifth of the total cash income of American agriculture this year. This does not mean that one fifth of farmers' income is from the Government. It should be recognized that the government stockpile of non-farm strategic reserves also is very large. The government has been spending about a billion dollars a year for the last four years to put strategic mineral reserves in the defense stockpile. Part of the CCC investment in farm reserves should be credited to strategic stockpiling.

However, it is obvious that some of the reserves are much larger than needed for this purpose. CCC holds enough wheat to satisfy domestic needs for a year and three months and enough cotton to last about a year.

The seven-billion-dollar total includes about two and a half billion dollars in loans advanced to farmers on storage crops. The rest is made up of commodities owned outright by the Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation. The total inventory is valued at the support prices paid in acquiring it. Actually, the market value today would be considerably less than 7 billion dollars if the stuff were to be released.

The size of this farm commodity surplus dramatizes the need for radical changes in farm policy.

The action of the last Congress in moderately lowering some price guarantees will barely touch the problem. The accumulation of farm commodities is continuing and will continue during the year.

Ideas have changed in recent years on how large farm commodity reserves should be. Bigger carryovers have been found to be worthwhile as protection against

Sen. Murray of Montana and Sen. O'Mahoney survived in Democratic opinion only because they are leading Catholic laymen, hence better armored against the Nixon type of attack. Neuberger proved to be the sleeper in Oregon that Sen. Clements predicted last spring when he noted Sen. Cordon rarely went home to mend fences.

It was not an accident that Neuberger triggered the story of the controversy over Nixon. He speaks for men who believe they were maligned and slandered not in hot blood but in a cold and calculated political offensive.

There will probably be a lull in the controversy over Nixon, whose zeal to win they felt matched their own. Their conferences put the vice president on the road in one of the most intensive mid-term speaking campaigns ever waged by one in his position. The concentration naturally was on senators; why they win, the House candidates of their party generally do too.

Nixon's calculations emerge clearly from his itinerary and method. The South and border states of course were hopeless. In the East, Democratic incumbents were running in generally Democratic states except New Jersey, where the special situation of Republican Clifford Case, a McCarthy target, made any outside intrusion delicate and dangerous. In the Midwest, except for Douglas in Illinois and possibly Gillette in Iowa, Republicans already had the edge.

Whether or not Democrats keep Nixon on the defensive, he is

State School Board Names Decker Commissioner; Opposes Land Sale

By ARCH DONOVAN

Star Staff Writer

After organizing and electing F. B. Decker as commissioner of education, the newly created State Board of Education Monday discussed proposed education bills in the Legislature and in an informal vote expressed opposition to LB 26 which calls for sale of the 1,630,000 acres of state owned school land.

The proposal to sell the lands given the state by the federal government as a trust for school operation is being made by Sens. Monroe Bixler of Harrison and D.

J. Cole of Merriman. Similar proposals have been defeated in past sessions.

At its first formal meeting with all six members present, the board named Morris Jacobs of Omaha, chairman; and Dr. Raymond Gilmore, Kearney, vice-chairman. Both will serve for two year terms.

The board then named Decker, former state superintendent, as commissioner of education and fixed the salary at $9,000 a year. Both Decker and Jacobs were given temporary appointments at the organization meeting a week ago.

The new position for Decker which will run one year brings a

$2,500 a year increase in salary. He was formerly paid $6,500.

"Decker hasn't been paid what he should have been paid for a long time," Chairman Jacobs said. The higher salary takes into account increased responsibilities Decker is assuming, he added.

The board approved the following staff appointments:

G. F. Liebendorfer, deputy commissioner and assistant commissioner for vocational education.

Stanley L. Hawley, administrative assistant to the commissioner.

Dr. Leo L. Black, assistant commissioner for instruction.

Liebendorfer has been director of vocational education under a board that was abolished and the work consolidated under the new state board.

Attending their first board meeting were Hamilton F. Mitten, Fremont, recently appointed by Gov. Victor Anderson, to fill the vacancy caused by Walter Steffen of Norfolk failing to qualify and Dr. Gilmore who was suffering minor injuries from an auto accident at the time of the first meeting.

Decker told the board he esti-ated that from 60 to 70 bills that affected education in some way probably would be introduced in the present session of the Legislature. He said that previously he appeared before committees only at the express request of senators or when bills directly affected his office.

He was authorized to appear before committees at his discretion to testify on bills affecting the field. However, they indicated that board members will endeavor to attend hearings on major bills. Frank Landis of Lincoln and W. Ray Hill, Seward, were named a legislative committee.

In addition to informally expressing opposition to LB 26, the board registered approval of LB 98

which provides that third grade and elementary school certificates shall not be issued after 1960.

The board will meet again on Feb. 8 in regular session.

STAN DELAPLANE'S POSTCARD

A number of years ago, a prospector staggered out of the Superstition Mountains into Phoenix. He had a showbox full of gold and immediately became very popular. I have forgotten his name and am too lazy to look it up. But this is the way most stories of the lost Dutchman Mine begin.

Since then, a raft of people have looked for the mine. So many miners staggered out of the hills, it became profitable to put up soft drink stands on the route. Gradually this grew into a paying business and the resort area of Camelback was born.

Hardly anybody looks for gold in the hills anymore. Too much here on the desert.

"He don't like that horse you're on," said the wrangler conversationally.

"For heaven's sake, why not?" I said. The animal had missed my leg by a small margin.

"He gets too much attention. Dudes allus bringin' him sugar and stufflike that."

"I never brought the bum any sugar. Is he mad at me?"

"He don't mind you. If he was to kick it would be accidental. Ha, ha."

On succeeding days I found horses more and more unpredictable. They have to be lathered with a chunk of sagebrush to get them into a high walk. But when they are headed for home, there is no holding them.

"I reckon they want to eat. Just like us," said the wrangler.

Personally I don't care to have my spine bumped by a hungry horse. And for all I know they might get hungry enough to take a chunk out of me. They have horribly large teeth.

I simply mention it because horses come with the equipment out thisaway. A visitor not on a horse is nobody. Like a tourist without a sun tan at Waikiki.

For this social progress, the tourist puts up with saddle burns.

Mr. Stewart took me back in the kitchen. He said it was the main power plant of the resort business.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astrin-gents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.* The price is only 98¢ a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores.

And remember—if not entirely satisfied—your money will be refunded promptly. *Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Belden Line Funds Are Included In Budget

Missouri Basin Transmission Projects Set At $16,480,000

WASHINGTON — Funds for completion of the Gavins Point-Belden 115 KV transmission line, a controversial subject in the last session of Congress, were included in the budget recommendations handed to Congress Monday.

The House refused to include funds for the Belden line last year but the Senate included them. Efforts to reach a compromise stalled until the dying days of the session when a supplemental appropriation bill provided funds to start the line.

$16 Million Item

The recommendation for the Belden line was lumped in a $16,480,000 item covering transmission facilities in the Missouri Basin.

Other transmission line projects included were:

Continuation of the Alcova-Gering 115 KV line, the Lingle tap and the Gering substation additions; Gavins Point Tap-Gavins Point 115 KV transmission line; the start of work on the Fort Randall-Neligh 115 KV line and additions to the Ogallala and Chadron substations.

Recommendations for existing construction projects included $6,784,000 for the Bostwick Division, an irrigation project which taps the Harlan County Dam on the Republican River in south Central Nebraska. This project will provide 100,000 acres of land with irrigation water.

Money For Lovewell

The recommended funds would provide for work on the Lovewell Dam and Reservoir on the Kansas section of the river below Superior, Neb.; the start of work on the Meeker-Driftwood canal and on the Courtland canal and laterals and other work.

The Frenchman-Cambridge Division of southwest Nebraska would get $1,500,000 in the recommended budget. This would permit initiation of work on the Meeker-Driftwood canal southwest of McCook and the riverside sections of the Frenchman unit canal and lateral systems northwest of McCook. The Frenchman-Cambridge division, a 72-million dollar flood control and irrigation project, stretches along the Republican River Valley from Trenton to Orleans to the west of the Bostwick Division.

The system proposed to irrigate some 68,000 acres of Nebraska farm lands from four dams, The Enders,

Gen. Potter Believes Requests Would Keep Work On Schedule

OMAHA — The President's budget recommendations for the Missouri Basin if approved by Congress would provide "reasonably adequate amounts to maintain construction schedules on major Corps of Engineers projects now in the building stage," Brig. Gen. W. E. Potter said Monday.

Gen. Potter is Missouri River Division engineer.

Gen. Potter estimated that the recommended funds would enable the engineers to bring the Garrison Dam in North Dakota to 99 per cent of completion in fiscal 1956, the Fort Randall Dam in South Dakota to 97 per cent of completion, the Gavins Point Dam on the Nebraska-South Dakota border to 86 per cent of completion and the Oahe Dam in South Dakota to 18 per cent of completion.

He also noted that the recommendation of $5,300,000 for river stabilization and navigation work on the Missouri River between Omaha and Sioux city would make it the second year in a row for which substantial funds have been earmarked for a section of the river, which has had no funds since being for World War II.

Gen. Potter said channel work between Omaha and the mouth of the Missouri is now about 80 per cent completed, while the section from Omaha to Sioux City is about 33 per cent completed.

Here, in brief, is what the Corps of Engineers estimates can be accomplished provided Congress goes along with the budget recommendations for the Missouri Basin:

Garrison would provide for completion of the power house structure and gates, completion of the spill structure and gates, county road relocations, reservoir clearing, construction of penstocks and surge tanks, completion of the dam on the spillway and stilling basin. They anticipate that all major contracts on Garrison could be let by June of this year.

Gavins Point would permit initiation of construction for power plant 5 on the main embankment on the right bank of the stream on which about 29 million cubic yards of earth are to be placed for the power house area on the left bank of the stream and permit work to continue on the right bank of the stream on the flood control tunnels, the outlet works, stilling basin and flood control shafts. The work on the right bank would be the final work on that part of the river.

Fort Randall—would carry construction through to the operation of all eight power tunnels providing for production of 320,000 kilowatts of power.

Gavins Point—would permit completion of the power house substructure, completion of earthwork stage two and the spillway, continuation of land acquisition and construction of the power house substructure and generators. This would cover the closure of the dam scheduled this summer, probably in July. Major contracts on Gavins Point have been let.

State Cattle On Grain Feed Hits 2nd High Of 619,000

Nebraska had an estimated 619,000 cattle on grain feed as of Jan. 1 — the second highest total of record for that date.

The number is topped only by the 731,000 on feed Jan. 1, 1953, and is two per cent higher than the 607,000 head a year ago, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported Monday.

The number of stocker and feeder cattle shipped to Nebraska country points during the last three months of last year was the largest since records were started in the 1930s, and were 38 per cent higher than the comparable figure a year earlier.

Open Weather

Many feeder cattle were purchased to pick up corn which fell to the ground because of corn borer damage. Mild, open weather also prompted late pasturing of cattle and as of Jan. 1 there were cattle in some localities which had not yet been placed on grain feed, the agency explained.

Farmers report feeding and marketing intentions similar to last year. About half of the cattle now on feed are expected to be marketed in the next three months.

During the quarter just ended, feeders marketed 215,000 cattle. This compares with advance intentions to market 218,000 head.

21 Per Cent

Cattle which have been on feed three months or longer make up 21 per cent of the present total. A year earlier the comparable figure was 23 per cent.

Heifers comprised 25 per cent of the current total, compared to 16 per cent a year earlier.

In the three cornbelt states of Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska, the combined number on feed was 2,371,000, as compared with 2,265,000 a year earlier.

But The Men Turned The Tables

The members of a certain feminine sewing club decided it would be an exceedingly nice gesture if the group entertained the husbands at a Sunday night supper. The time and date were arranged and the invitations issued to the eight husbands who accepted with pleasure.

The supper was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Steven N. Watkins, and as the time approached each wife wondered why her husband was so long getting ready to leave — But eventually everyone arrived, supper was served, devoured with gusto — and considerable small talk.

But there was no lingering at the table as far as the gents were concerned — as a man they arose and hurried to the wrap closet from which they took various articles —

When the ladies joined the gentlemen they found them hard at work — sewing — There were socks — there were shirts, and there were darning needles and a variety of implements — hedge clippers, with which the masculine stitchers were cutting their thread — pincers, to hold the needle steady while threading — One member of the group had gone so far as to punch small holes in a shirt in order to do his "eyelet embroidery."

There were knitting bags, cans bags marked "HIS" — there were paper sacks and boxes — all carrying handwork with which the gentlemen spent the evening, thus turning the tables on their "sewing club" wives.

Mrs. Wesley Reischneider has been named general chairman of the school bond promotion for the PTA and will be assisted by Miss Marian Watkins, principal, and Mrs. A. B. Whitmer, PTA president. Voting day chairman will be Mrs. Vern A. Young and anyone wanting transportation that day is asked to call Mrs. Young, 2-5736.

PTA Monthly Programs

A talk on, "Your Stake in Nebraska's Education," was given by former Governor Robert Crossby Monday evening at the monthly meeting of IRVING PTA. Mrs. J. Edmunds Miller, state president of the League of Women Voters, was in charge of the program and spoke on the proposed school bond issue.

Mrs. Alton Pardee, president, conducted a short business meeting.

SHERIDAN PTA members met Monday afternoon at which time Miss Elva McFie, coordinator of art for the Lincoln Schools, gave a talk and demonstration. A book review was presented by Mrs. Harold Shelledy, and Mrs. Irvin Roswell presided at the meeting.

WE'LL TELL ALL IN TIME

MADE numerous notations in our little red book this ayem—but they all pertain to a most exciting future for certain of the populace—and we'll tell you about each and every one when the time comes—Sort of wondered if Mrs. George—scuse please—Sen. Hazel Abel—and her daughter, Miss Alice Abel, had returned from abroad and if and when they would be in Lincoln.

Learned that Sen. Abel and Miss Abel added Spain to their itinerary, and that they have not as yet returned to the States—However, they are expected to land sometime next week, and the consensus seems to be that they shortly will return to Lincoln.

AND we figured that this was about the time that two well known people would be celebrating their birthday anniversaries together—a sort of traditional affair—Saturday night is the night, and the birthday celebrants are Mrs. Harold Hoppe and Don Shurtliff—The party will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Shurtliff, and we hear that the guest list will include a group of birthday celebrators.

JUST found that the late week doesn't have a monopoly on all of the parties around town—

This evening, for instance, the members of the Fifty Fifty Club will be dining and dancing in the Terrace Room at Hotel Lincoln. In charge of the "June in January" party arrangements are Mr. and Mrs. J. Earle Trabert, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kietgan, Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Peter T. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hahn, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Liebers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wishart and Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Faires.

OUR brides' book tells us that next week end is to be a busy one for bride-elect Bobbie Russell, whose marriage to Lt. Richard Spangler will take place on Feb. 12—We've already mentioned the luncheon for which Mrs. Paul Ludwick will be hostess at her home on Saturday when she entertains the bridal party—

On Saturday evening Miss Russell will be complimented when Miss Della Caster is a dinner hostess at the University Club. The soon-to-be bride will be presented with a miscellaneous shower.

A Sunday morning party for Miss Russell is the brunch planned by Miss Phyllis Colbert and Miss Judy Flansburg, and which is to be given at the home of Miss Colbert.

UNDERSTAND that Mrs. E. M.

Forsyth will be leaving next Friday for New Orleans where she will attend a meeting of the Southwest Savings and Loan Companies' board of directors.

That phase of the trip to New Orleans is strictly business—the pleasure angle is a Carnival ball which Mrs. Forsyth will attend.

TODAY is meeting day for the members of the Nebraska Art Association board, so we hear—and we're guessing that most of the business transacted will involve the forthcoming annual spring exhibit.

We Hear That

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Wilcox of Ellsworth announce the birth of a daughter, Nancy Kathleen, on Friday, Jan. 14. Mrs. Wilcox is the former Shirley Seright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Seright of Lincoln. The baby's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Edson Wilcox of Ellsworth.

Dental Assistants "Capped"

To Install New Officers

The NCO Wives Club will install their new officers Wednesday, evening following the group's dinner at Cotner Terrace. Mrs. Jack Libby is the new president of the club and other officers are Mrs. Art Mapstead, first vice president; Mrs. Max Marsh, second vice president; Mrs. William Marcus, secretary; Mrs. Kenneth Timberlake, treasurer; and Mrs. William Priddy, assistant treasurer.

Mrs. M. J. Alexander will be the welcoming chairman; Mrs. Phillip Washington, welfare chairman; Mrs. Robert Moore, social chairman; and Mrs. Virgil Jacobs, publicity.

New members of the board of governors will be Mrs. Clifford Deane, Mrs. Edward Call and Mrs. William Foster.

Plan Polio Benefit

A special polio benefit will be held Friday evening at King's Ballroom when the members of the West O Woman's Club, Lakeview School, School District 113, and the Lakeview Methodist Church WSCS will join to entertain at a Carnival Family Fun program.

Mrs. G. F. Severson, chairman for the West O Club, has announced that the fun will begin at 7:30 o'clock and will include dancing from 9:30 o'clock to midnight, prizes and a special feature, "Madam Fifi," who eats, sleeps and drinks under water.

The community members are urged to attend, and there will be no admission charged.

School Groups Agree On State Aid, Sales Tax, Redistricting

State School Boards Meeting Votes On Proposed Legislation

By SALLY ADAMS

Star Staff Writer

Apparent agreement among state groups on proposed legislation was in sight Monday following submission of resolutions to the Nebraska State School Boards Association.

Delegates are voting by ballot on the resolutions with final outcome to be announced Tuesday morning.

Support of the state aid bill proposed recently by a committee composed of members from the steering committee of the Governor's Lay Leadership Conference and members of the Nebraska State Education Association is among the resolutions submitted.

This proposal calls for equalization of educational opportunity for pupils and equalization of school costs through appropriations from the state's general fund.

It calls for one-third of the revenue to be distributed proportionately to schools on the basis of an equalization fund, and two-thirds to be distributed to schools on the basis of average daily attendance.

Favors Sales Tax

In the field of finance, a resolution would put the association on record as favoring a sales and use tax and/or a state income tax. A companion resolution calls for such tax money to be put into the temporary school fund for distribution after state government expenses are extracted.

The school district reorganization resolution calls for legislation providing for:

Increased and more equitable representation on county committees.

Submission of a comprehensive county reorganization plan every three years and submission of an annual report.

Final approval of reorganization projects by the state committee.

Majority vote of both rural and urban voting units.

Favors Teacher Minimum

The association also proposes endorsement of LB98 providing that after Sept. 15, 1960, the lowest grade of teachers certificate to be issued will require a minimum of two years of college preparation.

A further proposal calls for immediate enactment of legislation providing teacher referendum on Social Security coverage with benefits to supplement the present retirement system.

Other resolutions proposed would put the association on record as:

Urge legislation to authorize and direct the State Board of Education to establish and execute rules governing the transportation of school children by school bus.

Oppose legislation exempting school buses from payment of license fees.

Oppose any legislation permitting disposal of state school lands.

Oppose any legislation calling for a severance tax on oil and gas production with proceeds going into the permanent school fund.

Favoring legislation to increase free high school tuition commensurate with the cost of education.

Approximately 450 persons are attending the convention which will continue through Tuesday.

At the morning meeting, Mrs. J. F. Lucas, president of the Omaha Board of Education, was named as vice president by the nominating committee.

Robert E. Cape of Dalton, 1954-55 vice president, steps up to the presidency. He and Mrs. Lucas will assume their new duties July 1.

The group was greeted to Lincoln by Mrs. Roscoe Hill, president of the Lincoln Board of Education. David Osterhout is president of the Association.

Superintendent 'Expert'

Jesse G. Stratton, president of the Clinton, Okla., Oklahoma, and national board of education groups, told the Association that school board when hiring a superintendent shouldn't tell him how to run his schools.

He said that a superintendent is educated in running schools and that being his field, the board of education should stay out of it. He said board members get the wrong idea a lot of the time. They get the idea they are legislators and executives, too.

He said one of the major things a school board can do is to help people realize what they have in common and not be too critical of the teachers.

He said one of the major reasons teachers are quitting the business is because of the criticism.

Money Need 'Critical'

Stratton said the schools today are in critical need of money and that it is a critical need that will have to be met. He pointed out that in 1900 the expenditure per capita of the federal government was $6.80 while that spent for education was only $3.40. This, he noted, was a two-to-one ratio.

He compared the expenditure of 1953, which was $467 per capita, with the $76 for education and noted the ratio has dropped to six-to-one.

On criticism levelled against the schools for not going back to the straight teaching of reading, writing, and arithmetic, he said the schools are progressing into new avenues of education and "they're not going back." He said many people want to see the schools do things the "way they did it way back in my time," adding this would be like going back to using coal oil lamps for lighting.

Called to Meeting

Stratton was forced to an early departure from the Association conference because of a summons to attend a conference in Washington, D.C. on education with the White House Committee on Education.

He said the committee expects to take up as one of its major problems the present economic distress of the schools. Stratton suggested one way of meeting this would be to put forth a better program of property equalization in support of the schools.

He said also there is some possibility that property taxation may not be the answer to the financing program, but that this will take serious consideration in the future.

A farmer by trade, Stratton is one of the lay members of the White House Committee. He has just been re-elected president of the Oklahoma School Boards Association and is serving now as president of the Clinton, Okla., school board.

Robin Scully Makes Second Court Try To Gain Control Of Vast Inheritance

NELSON, Neb. (AP) — Robin F. Scully, Beatrice, Neb., Monday began his second court fight to gain control of vast family holdings in Nebraska.

Last June 19, Nuckols County Judge W. E. Garrison ruled that Scully's uncle, Thomas A. Scully of Lincoln, Ill., as trustee of the estate, had discretionary powers to determine whether the estate should go to his nephew now or in five years, in spite of Robin Scully's apparent fitness to manage the holdings.

The trust includes 56,832 acres of Nebraska land plus securities and personal property. The land is part of the holdings amassed by Lord William Scully, an Irish peer who came to America.

Robin's brother, William, also of Beatrice, inherited 61,100 acres of Kansas land which was part of his father's estate.

Lad Charged With Delinquency, Arson After Fire Admissions

A 14-year-old Lincoln boy, who had admitted to police the setting of three apartment house fires last Thursday and Friday, is being held in custody on a complaint of delinquency and arson made to the Lancaster County Juvenile Court.

Chief Probation Officer Helen Cox, who was given the youth's custody by the court pending trial, said he has been taken to Bailey's Hospital until his appearance in court, probably this Friday.

In his signed statement given police, the red-haired youth, who will be 15 in March, admitted setting fires at the William Penn Apartments at 1403 E. the Jefferson Apartment building, at 1441 G. and the Sias Apartment Building at 1327 H.

He told police he was "mad" at the tenants in two of the apartment buildings because he and his sister had been thrown out of the buildings last Halloween while tricks-or-treating.

The youth also had admitted three assault incidents during the past several weeks: One against a woman in an attempted purse snatch and the other against two girls when he whipped out a knife and pretended to throw it "just to scare them."

He was apprehended Sunday night by police following an incident in which he drew a knife on a 12-year-old boy when he became angry over a snowball fight.

Prodded By Police

Under questioning by police, the lad admitted the previous assault incidents and the setting of the fires.

The youth is on parole from the Kearney State Industrial School following a 22-month commitment for theft. Police said he has admitted setting fire to two buildings in another Nebraska town where he once lived.

Present Pen Administration To Stay Until Penologist Hired—Governor

Gov. Victor E. Anderson said Monday that the present administration at the Nebraska State Penitentiary will be retained until a penologist is hired to supervise all the state's institutions.

He said that he was in agreement with the state Board of Control that "nothing should be done about hiring a new warden until we have brought in a penologist to direct the activities of all the institutions."

William L. Diers, chairman of the Board of Control, said last week that a penologist would be employed by the state in line with prison expert Sanford Bates.

Working Together

Former Gov. Robert B. Crosby's Citizens' Committee last year sharply criticized operations at the Penitentiary and recommended a change in administration.

Gov. Anderson said that his office and the Board of Control "have been working together on Penitentiary matters."

"We feel that the new penologist should have a free hand in selecting the administration at the penitentiary since he will have the responsibility," the governor added.

Warden Herbert Hann and Deputy Warden John Geenoltz have been under fire from several sources since the release of the report by the citizens' committee.

Careful Timing

Gov. Anderson also said that he felt any change in the post of warden should "be a matter of careful timing."

The governor said that the Board of Control is conferring with Bates and other prison authorities in selecting a penologist to head the prison system. He added that the choice will be made "as soon as possible."

The placement of a permanent psychiatrist at the prison, another recommendation contained in the Bates report, will be up to the new pen director, Anderson said.

Sen. Lester Anderson of Aurora, who has introduced a resolution calling for a legislative investigation of the Penitentiary situation, said the appointment of a pen director should be made quickly.

Right Track

He said that the decision to press his resolution will depend upon "how fast the board takes action." The resolution was referred to committee by the unicameral last week.

"The governor and the Board of Control are working on the right track," Sen. Anderson said.

"But the board has had years to face this problem, and they

'NU Flat In Bowl Game But Boys Tried,'—Orwig

Glassford, Staff Are Praised By Director; Success For Athletics In Future Predicted

NELIGH — Nebraska Athletic Director Bill Orwig made his first public statement on the Huskers' showing in the Orange Bowl Monday night and denied that the boys didn't try.

Orwig told the Neligh Rotary that the Orange Bowl is past history and "there is no doubt that we were flat. What caused it, I personally do not know."

But, he added, "I do know one thing, and that is that our boys tried."

Orwig also said, "What causes athletic teams to be flat on certain days? I have seen teams figuratively tear down the locker room doors to get on the field and then fail to produce. It's a terrible feeling to want to play your best and yet not be able to do so."

"Perhaps the eleven boys from Duke on the other side of the line — had something to do with it."

After the Huskers dropped the bowl game to Duke, 34-7, press and radio representatives charged that some of the Nebraska players took the game too lightly.

Staff Praised

Orwig also had some praise for Nebraska Coach Bill Glassford and his assistants.

"Bill Glassford and his staff have done an excellent job this past fall. They appraised and evaluated their material well and fitted it into an offensive and defensive pattern that produced a season beyond our expectations."

He added that the coaches and members of the squad "certainly should receive a commendation of 'well done' from all Nebraskans."

The NU athletic director also urged Nebraskans to have patience and faith in the ultimate success of the university's building program.

Holds Success'

"Like Coach Glassford," Orwig said, "I, too, am looking to the future. I am sure it holds success for Nebraska athletics."

"I ask that you of our Nebraska family have patience. It is the aim of your athletic administration to attempt to return our athletic program to its pre-war level."

"It will take time, and mistakes will be made, but I can assure you they will be honest mistakes that can be rectified as we move forward."

"Our program cannot be accomplished overnight. However, with faith, confidence, indulgence and support of each of you, I am positive that it can be done."

Nebraska track coach Jerry Lee accompanied Orwig to Neligh and also spoke to the Rotarians.

Iowa State also had an 8-point bulge—the game's largest—moving to an 18-10 lead with 8 minutes gone in the first period.

The Cyclone attack faltered, however, and Kansas gained command on Dobbs' basket only seconds before the halftime gun.

Dobbs led all scorers with 21 points, 18 of them from the field. Center Chuck Duncan was high scorer for the Cyclones with 20.

Sec. Dulles Urges Lower Tariffs, Expanding Trade

'Allies Fear'
We May Shift

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles told Congress Monday that success for American foreign policy in the battle against world communism may depend on President Eisenhower's program for lower tariffs and expanded trade.

America's Allies, he said, "fear that we may shift to a policy of raising rather than lowering trade barriers."

And unless the United States acts to ease these fears, Dulles said, it "could set up a chain reaction which would gravely damage and disrupt the free world."

Dulles was leadoff witness before the House Ways and Means Committee for a bill to extend the reciprocal trade act three more years, with power for the President to cut tariffs an additional 15 per cent, at the rate of five per cent a year.

More Goods

The idea is to help free world allies bolster their economy by selling more goods here, thus earning more dollars; and to help Americans in turn sell more goods abroad, because of increased dollar supplies there.

Dulles declared the program would be an economic boon to the United States as well as to its allies. But even if it amounted to financial sacrifices here, he added:

"I would still advocate the bill as needed to preserve the unity and vigor of the free world in the face of the terrible menace that confronts it."

"In time of war we make sacrifices that are immense. I believe that in time of peace we should also be prepared to make some sacrifices in order to hold together a free world partnership which is indispensable to the peace and security" of each nation.

Allies May Have To Look Elsewhere

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce declared Monday night that Allied nations which are denied markets in the United States "will have to look elsewhere—and they will look behind the Iron Curtain."

In a speech to the Poor Richard Club, Mrs. Luce said that world trade and United States trade policies have a direct bearing upon American security in three ways. She said:

"First, we need for our industries and for our defense, what can only be obtained abroad.

175 Divisions

"Second, our world allies can support their share of our common defense only as their economies permit—and that means only as they can trade. What those allies mean, in strictly military terms, is some 175 divisions to add to our 20, and the bases in Europe, the Near East, and the Far East without which our combined military forces would be comparatively ineffective.

"Third, allies who are denied U.S. markets will have to look elsewhere—and they will look behind the Iron Curtain. And it would be idle for us to exclaim that they would be making fateful political commitments in the process. . . .

"The clear and decisive truth is that our trade policy is, to all the world, a test of our worth as a champion of the West, a challenge in our determination to be the good partner in world affairs."
